Keep in mind that even the best tutorials don't make you a Photoshop expert overnight. Training a newbie in advanced techniques will take you far if you really want to increase your Photoshop skills. Using Photoshop You can work with Photoshop by either clicking the tool icon at the bottom of the workspace, or by using the keyboard shortcuts assigned to the tools' functions. This book mainly focuses on the keyboard shortcuts, but you can find out more on the Photoshop toolbox (refer to Figure 1-1) and the Options bar (refer to Figure 1-2). The toolbox is used to select tools, click palettes, or to assign keyboard shortcuts, and the Options bar is used to access all Photoshop settings including toolboxes, layers, and color settings. Most of the time, you'll use Photoshop with the keyboard. The best way to learn how to use Photoshop is to type in simple commands, then look up the help and sound out the commands for yourself. After you learn the keyboard shortcuts, you'll be able to access Photoshop's functions almost instantly. Photoshop 101 Photoshop is pretty simple to use for beginners. Just make sure that you have a basic understanding of digital images. The following sections are intended to introduce you to the basic features, so don't worry about learning them in detail yet. Figure 1-1: After creating your workspace, select tools and palettes on the left. The icons at the bottom of the workspace are shortcut keys to use Photoshop's tools. Figure 1-2: The Options bar contains commands that allow you to adjust the workspace and tools and access important Photoshop settings. Understanding the workspace When you first open Photoshop, the workspace looks like Figure 1-3. Photoshop organizes tools into toolboxes and palettes, and you need to select a toolbox or palette on the left side of the window to access tools. To do so, click a toolbox or palette's title until it turns blue, or right-click the toolbox and choose Palettes from the menu. Figure 1-3: Photoshop's default workspace looks like this after opening. To hide toolboxes or palettes (but not the Options bar), right-click a toolbox or palette and choose Hide from the menu. After you select a toolbox or palette, click any tool within the toolbox to make it active; that's how you access the functions of the tools. Then you can use
